Field Trip Description

The students in the Library Club at St. James High school have been reading the Divergent trilogy. This fall we are reading Allegiance as a group and having a book discussion. The objective of the trip is for the students to be able to compare and contrast the book to the movie. Allegiance comes out in theaters in the spring. Watching a movie after reading the book is a wonderful way to encourage students to think critically about how each medium presented roughly the same information. Allowing the student to critically think is why this trip is important. They are being given an opportunity to develop the skill at the same time enjoy an outing. These students live in a rural area and the opportunity for these students to go beyond the four walls of the classroom to learn is often limited.

Benefits of Proposed Field Trip

Students will benefit from having the opportunity to attend the movies. The outing itself helps to develop social skills because they will be interacting on the bus. Even though in the show, there will be minimal interaction, the benefits come after the reading of the book and watching the movie. These activities will help with the class discussion. This activity will provide the students with the knowledge to express their thoughts. The students will make a Venn Diagram using one circle for the book and one circle for the movie. This task is a way for the students to be able to jot down their thoughts while comparing and contrasting. As the instructor, I will use the Venn Diagram as a way to measure the success of the trip. I should be able to tell by reading the Venn Diagrams if the students have a good understanding of the book and the movie. The class will have a Fish Bowl discussion and be able to use the Venn Diagram to guide them in the discussion.
